HOUSE BILL NO. 3283

Introduced by Honorable Mercedes "Didi" C. Cagas

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This bill seeks to increase the compensation for persons wrongfully convicted of a crime, amending for the purpose Republic Act (RA) No. 7609, entitled "An Act Creating a Board of Claims Under the Department of Justice for Victims of Unjust Imprisonment or Detention and Victims of Violent Crimes and for Other Purposes."

Section 1, Article III of the 1987 Constitution states that:

"Section 1. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor shall any person be denied the equal protection of the laws."

A number of prisoners have been in jail for several years with their cases still pending before the courts because there are not enough courts and judges to hear and decide cases. Due to the snail-pace justice system, these prisoners spend the best and productive years of their lives in prison. There is a great percentage of those who languish in jail who, after years of court hearings, are eventually acquitted of the charges, declared innocent and are set free.

When a person is convicted and punished for a crime he did not commit, there is miscarriage of justice. There are cases when, upon review of the Supreme Court, the decisions of the lower courts are reversed and the convict is acquitted of the charges. Wrongfully convicted persons have been incarcerated only to be acquitted later. These persons, despite their proven innocence and after finally being exonerated, find it difficult to reenter the mainstream of society because of the notable indifference accorded to them.

A Rehabilitation Enhancement for Holistic Advancement of Beneficiaries (REHAB) program of the Department of Labor and Employment and the Department of Justice as well as other government agencies and non-government organizations provides ex-offenders with livelihood assistance which will generate sustainable employment to help them become productive individuals. This program is not enough especially for wrongfully convicted persons.

Under RA 7309, a Board of Claims under the Department of Justice was created to receive, evaluate, process, investigate, approve or deny claims of victims of unjust imprisonment or detention and of victims of violent crimes. At present, the compensation provided in RA 7309 is no longer sufficient considering that the law was enacted way back in 1992.

This bill aims to reasonably compensate the loss, injury and damage to wrongfully convicted persons by increasing the compensation authorized under RA 7309. It also proposes the increase in the annual funding and allocation for the compensation fund. This measure will not indemnify the deprivation, suffering and trauma caused by wrongful conviction but will somehow correct the injustice experienced by persons wrongfully accused and incarcerated.

In view of the foregoing, passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
