House Bill No. 1095

EXPLANATORY NOTE

"...(A)ng mamatay ng dahil sa'yo" is the last line of "Lupang Hinirang", or the Philippine National Anthem, composed by Julian Felipe in the 1800s and translated into its current Filipino version in the 1950s under the initiative of then President Ramon Magsaysay. It speaks of the Filipinos immense love for his country that he is willing to lay down his life in the service and defense of his motherland.

Like the National Anthem, the Philippine flag is another national symbol which embodies the national ideals and traditions, and exemplifies the principles of sovereignty and national solidarity. First unfurled during the battle between the Spanish and Filipino forces in Alapan, Cavite in 1898, the Philippine flag was the unifying symbol that rallied the Filipinos towards liberation from foreign rule which culminated in the proclamation of independence in Kawit, Cavite on June 12, 1898.

As a way of honoring those who have died for the country and those who have rendered distinguished service for the nation, Section 24 of Republic Act. No. 8491, or the Flag and Heraldic Code of the Philippines, provides an enumeration of those who are privileged to have their casket covered or draped by the Philippine flag. However, the enumeration provided under the above section is limited since it limits the privilege to former military and war veterans, and to civilians who have rendered distinguished service to the nation, as may be determined by the local government unit concerned. The discretion given to local government unit seems untrammelled, and as such, may be subject to abuse, depending on the decedent's relationship with the incumbent local executive.

To inspire nationalism, patriotism, and dedication among Filipinos especially to those in the field of sports, social, civic, and public services, this Act seeks to broaden or expand the enumeration provided under Sec. 24 of the Flag and Heraldic Code of the Philippines, while at the same time providing a clear direction as to who are mandatorily or discretionarily entitled to the privilege.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this bill is immediately sought.
