EXPLANATORY NOTE

Status confers privileges.

At least, this flows in the veins of Republic Act No. 9257 that granted additional benefits and privileges to senior citizens amending thereby Republic Act No. 7432.

By definition, a senior citizens is a resident citizen who is at least 60 years of age.

This bill more kindly looks at senior citizens as those who have worked for many years paying in taxes but would not live long enough to collect benefits.

And if life expectancy is only 58 for men and 62 for women, this kind of care from the state is of minimal help, matter-of-factly.

As much as an existing law has already granted senior citizens free medical and dental as well as laboratory in hospitals and a monthly stipend of P500 to as high as P1,500 for indigents, this new proposal should not be met with resistance.

This hardly expands the privileges or benefits any larger but should be viewed as a case where no one really gains as no one really loses. In short, the zero-sum game or conflict does not apply in this grant – as there is not situation where ones gain, is somebody else's loss.

Pragmatically, this bill envisions a free movie seat and/or free parking slot as just a minute protection against the hazards of sickness, unemployment, and old age, hence this proposed measure.

The immediate passage of this bill is collectively sought.
