EXPLANATORY NOTE

There are fake eye doctors who engage in the practice of optometry.

This may very well be a situation occurring in various parts of the country when pseudo-optometrists go into the practice of optometry without having acquired the appropriate professional licenses from the Professional Regulation Commission.

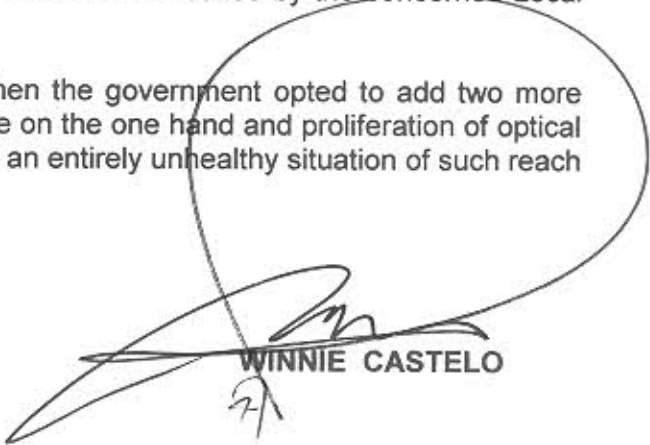

This scheme may have been too prevalent when a significant number of optical shops as those we find in malls do operate as if they were legitimate business establishments even though only very few of these shops have licensed optometrists. This observation has been validated by the PRC Board of Optometry.

And yet the use of contact lenses and eyeglasses, since they are medical devices do need to be prescribed by eye specialists and the term, 'eye specialists' refer to PRC-licensed optometrists.

The improper use of eyeglasses and contact lenses are found to eventually lead to cataract or glaucoma or other related eye problems if not blindness on the part of the unsuspecting buyer or user of these medical products.

To give Professional Regulation Commission a shot in the arm, therefore, requires that the practice of optometry be more closely monitored by PRC which alone can issue professional licenses and for it to issue agency clearance before optical shops or similar business establishments shall be issued Mayor's permit or Business License by the concerned Local Government Unit.

The shortage of optometrists in the country when the government opted to add two more years to the previous four-year optometry course on the one hand and proliferation of optical shops without licensed optometrists may lead to an entirely unhealthy situation of such reach and scope, hence this bill.
