EXPLANATORY NOTE

We have over one hundred ethnic groups all over Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao and collectively, our indigenous peoples compose roughly fifteen percent of our country's population. These indigenous peoples possess their distinct cultures, beliefs and traditions which set them apart from mainstream Filipinos and is the source of our nation's cultural heritage.

As time goes, however, our knowledge and appreciation of our ancestors' ethnic culture and traditions is dissipating. Especially in this age of information and communication technology (ICT), our Filipino youth is knowing less and less of their roots and origins.

For instance, in an interview of a known youth personality during an event organized by the National Commission for Culture and Arts which aimed to promote cultures of indigenous peoples, it was readily shown that the youth of today has completely lost knowledge and appreciation of our indigenous cultures. The news report stated:

"At the recent press conference hosted by event organizer, the National Commission for Culture and Arts, Miss Universe 2010 4th runner-up Venus Raj was a special guest and she articulated what is a common perception, particularly young people, after she watched a presentation by a group of Kalinga-Apayao natives.

"I have been seeing this kind of presentation in schools and other places but it is only now that it has dawned on me that such people really exist in the country, I thought they were just that before, mere dance presentations, I believe this event will be a big help to educate the youth of today on our native culture and traditions," says Raj."

(Quoted from: A celebration of Filipino Indigenous Culture, by Lito Cinco, Manila Standard Today, October 7, 2010)

It is posited that it is precisely because of the Filipinos' lack of knowledge and appreciation of their indigenous brothers' cultures and traditions that lead them to discriminate and marginalize the latter. The youth of today, for instance, do not seem to have sufficient education on the cultures and traditions of our indigenous cultural communities because there has not been a sufficient "flow of information" from the indigenous communities, through the State, to the mainstream Filipinos. Regretfully, the flow of information today seems to go from the mainstream unto the indigenous communities. This, it is feared would lead to the homogenization of our cultures and would completely eradicate the distinct cultural identity of our indigenous peoples.

The paradox, it is said, is that the more universal we become, the more concerned we are about our cultural identity.

With this rather alarming condition, this bill is proposed in order pass on to the Filipino youth of today the values and traditions of our indigenous peoples by including in indigenous education in their school curricula, so that they may have a deeper understanding of their roots and origins. It is hoped that with the passage of this bill, proper education would eventually eradicate prejudice and discrimination among members of our indigenous cultural communities.

In view of the foregoing, the immediate approval of this bill is earnestly requested by the undersigned representatives.
