EXPLANATORY NOTE

Global trends dictate that poor and developing countries need to adopt a 'science and technology mindset' to help achieve economic progress that will deliver long-term benefits for their people. The Philippines is one such country that could benefit immensely from this kind of national endeavour. By providing the next generation - the Filipino youth - with the right educational facilities in the areas of science and technology, we could very well be on the cusp of meaningful reform and progress.

Therefore, the State is called upon to institutionalize state-of-the-art science and technology education in the public schools by establishing a strong science and technology-oriented curriculum in key towns, cities, and provinces.

This bill hopes to establish one such science-oriented public secondary school in the City of Binan to be known as the Binan National Science High School. This public secondary institution will provide high level instruction in Science, Mathematics, and technology to young and bright students from Binan.

If we consider the Filipino youth as the future of our country, then it behoves our leaders to give them the space and the skills to rise up to this challenge.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
