First Regular Session

House Bill No. 1294

Introduced by Rep. Florida P. Robes

EXPLANATORY NOTE

It has been said that education, at all levels, is a powerful tool and a prime catalyst in promoting the socioeconomic development and growth of a nation. In fact, the 1987 Constitution provides that it is the duty of the State to protect and promote quality and accessible education for all (Section 1, Article XIV).

Of all levels of education, it is higher education that harnesses the productive capacity of our human resource. A better tertiary education will lead to economic, security, and material advances, all for the welfare of society. Good educational infrastructures will help contribute to the development of communities. Also, higher education must transcend curricular offerings as it should provide opportunities to lift people from the morass of poverty. With better education comes economic growth, job creation and competitiveness. And this is the real essence behind the filing of the Bill establishing a government-funded university in the Lone District of San Jose Del Monte, Bulacan.

Further, with the conclusion of the Millennium Development Goals or MDGs, proponents claim the goal of achieving universal primary education has been reached. Critics contend otherwise. This time, another set of development goals, the Sustainable Development Goals or Global Goals which is an offspring of MDGs, offer a broader sustainability agenda geared towards addressing the root cause of poverty. One of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals is education which seeks to ensure inclusive and equitable quality education and promote lifelong learning opportunities for all. It is no longer centered on primary education but education in all levels. With these said, there is a need to strengthen and enhance education in the tertiary level and make institutions of higher learning more accessible and available to our people. The said establishment of a state university will definitely boost the city's economic potential. At present, the only existing state-funded institutions of higher learning in the city are the satellite campuses of the Bulacan State University and Bulacan Polytechnic College.

If this proposal is realized, the City of San Jose Del Monte will become competitive in the light of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and ASEAN Integration. Anent this, the approval of this Bill is earnestly sought.
