EIGHTEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

House Bill No. _____
1997

Introduced by Rep. Christopher P. De Venecia

EXPLANATORY NOTE

It is alarming that the average age of a Filipino farmer is 57-59 years old. If this trend continues, it is just a matter of time before our country faces a critical shortage of farmers. Our farmers are getting old and their children are not keen on taking over farming because of their lack of interest, insufficient incentive, or both.

According to the Bureau of Agricultural Statistics (2015), Young farmers aged 39 and below account for only 12.3% of farmers in major commodity sector. Despite being a predominantly agricultural country, there are only about 12 million farmers out of 100 million Filipinos. Even with the increasing population, the available labor in the farm has been diminishing with an average 1.5% per year (Bureau of Agricultural Statistic, 2015).

The recent years saw a massive loss of farm workers. The Bureau of Agricultural Statistics stated that the number of farmers went down to 11.84 million in 2015 from 12.47 million in 2016, losing more than half a million farmers in just a span of a year. One possible factor is the waning interests of young individuals in entering agriculture courses. In the University of the Philippines-Los Banos (UPLB), enrollment in agriculture courses declined from 51% in 1980 to only 4.7% in 2014.

Enrollment of agriculture courses offered primarily in state universities and colleges have steadily declined due to perceived low employment opportunities. This decline leads to the shortage of capable agricultural professionals that may endanger the country's food supply.

Another possible reason for the decline of young farmers is the fact that they are among the poorest sector in the country. In 2014, the country's poverty incidence was at 26.5%, most of which come from the farmers and fisherfolks comprising 41.4% and 36.7% respectively.

Moreover, the agricultural sector receives the lowest average daily basic wage compared to non-agriculture industries. In figures, the average daily wage of a farmer is approximately Php 240.00 versus the national average of Php400.00. However, most farmers do not receive this amount on a daily basis as many farm jobs are seasonal. It is on this note that most people tend to perceive farmers as poor, uneducated and stagnant.

To address this crisis, there is need for an enabling policy framework that will provide a sense of pride for young Filipino farmers so that they will opt to stay in the farms, make a decent living from agriculture and secure the food sufficiency of the country.

This bill aims to promote the social and economic well-being of young farmers; develop their skills and capabilities; and eliminate discrimination against them by recognizing, protecting, fulfilling, and promoting their rights.

It defines and guarantees the human rights, empowerment of young farmers including their political, civil and social rights (right to food security, and productive resources, decent work, livelihood, credit, capital, and technology, education and training, participation and representation, information, social protection, recognition and preservation of cultural identity) and outlines the duties of the State to provide sufficient public funds and incentives, and strengthen young farmers' organizations through government research and extension work, trainings and related capacity building measures.

In view the foregoing, I am re-filing this bill that was initially filed in the 17th Congress. This version was pending by the Committee on Agriculture and Food and no action since then.

REP. CHRISTOPHER DE VENECIA
Fourth District, Pangasinan

AN ACT PROVIDING FOR THE MAGNA CARTA OF YOUNG FARMERS

Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Philippines in Congress assembled:

CHAPTER I

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SECTION 1. *Short Title. – This Act shall be known as the “The Magna Carta of Young Farmers.”

SEC.2. *Declaration of Policy. – The following are hereby declared to be policies of the State:

- a) The State hereby declares “Young Farmers” as an individual whose primary source of income comes from agriculture, with an age range of 15-35 years old, is owner, worker, tenant or lessee of the land in which they personally cultivate and till;
- b) The State recognizes Young Farmers as a separate basic sector with its own distinct rights and responsibilities;
- c) The State recognizes young farmers as supplemental income earners in the family farms playing a major role in augmenting their family’s proceeds. Doing so entails working odd jobs to sustain the family’s source of income most especially in non-harvesting seasons;
- d) The State acknowledges the invaluable role of Young farmers who are present in the value chain process starting from production, to processing, to value-adding up to marketing;
- e) The State recognizes the role of young farmers as eco-warriors and staunch advocates of environmental protection; and
- f) The State recognizes the indispensable contribution of Young Farmers to the overall food security and national economy.

Towards this end, the State shall establish mechanisms for the promotion and protection of young farmers' rights that would ensure their empowerment, productivity and competitiveness in the local and international trade.

SEC. 3. Definition of Terms. – Following terms are defined as follows:

a) “Agriculture” refers to farming in all of its branches and the cultivation and tillage of the soil, dairying, the production, cultivation, growing and harvesting of any agricultural, aquacultural, floricultural or horticultural commodities, the growing and harvesting of forest products upon forest land, the raising of livestock including horses, the keeping of horses as a commercial enterprise, the keeping and raising of poultry, swine, cattle and other domesticated animals used for food purposes and any forestry or lumbering operations, performed by a farmer.
