Eighteenth Congress
First Regular Session

HOUSE BILL NO. 2684

Introduced by Representative Joaquin M. Chipeco, Jr.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Every Filipino senior citizen, especially those beyond the general retirement age of 65 years old, represents a triumph of the Filipino race in its continuing struggle to extend longevity and overcome natural or artificial causes of death. The Human Development Index (HDI) of the United Nations includes longevity as among the factors to be considered in ranking countries around the world to determine whether they have achieved real progress.

The recently enacted Centenarians Act of 2016, or Republic Act No. 10868, grants a cash gift of P100,000.00 for every Filipino centenarian. On the other hand, at least one (1) bill has been filed in the House of Representatives providing monetary incentives in the amount of P 80,000 to senior citizens who have reached their 80th birthday. Variations of these amounts have also been extended by rich local government units to its senior citizens.

There is therefore a need to provide a more unified, standardized, symmetrical and graduated grant of benefits to qualified Filipino senior citizens which this bill aims to supply. It must always be remembered that the elderly is among the most vulnerable sectors of our society, and that we have the moral obligation to show our appreciation to them for their many years of contribution towards nation-building. The way we treat our elderly would also show whether we have truly built a "just and humane society".

The early approval of this measure is therefore earnestly sought.
