EXPLANATORY NOTE

Fine mesh nets are networks of fabric of cords or threads creating small and fine open spaces surrounding them for the purpose of catching or entrapping fish and other water creatures. Under Republic Act No. 8550, otherwise known as the Philippine Fisheries Code, the use of fine mesh nets is prohibited, except certain sizes that are allowed and prescribed by the Department of Agriculture as provided for in the law. The reason for the prohibition is that fine mesh nets capture even small fries that are not yet harvestable and thus contribute to the dwindling population of many species of fish.

While RA 8550 provides for exceptions as to sizes that may be prescribed by the Department, it has been observed that such authorized sizes when used doubly or tripled as in the case of trammel net set-ups and similar types of fishing operations produce the same results as those of the prohibited fine mesh nets, that is the unnecessary capture of small fries and fingerlings.

Thus, this bill seeks to prohibit the use of otherwise allowed sizes of fine mesh nets when used in trammel net set-ups and similar contraptions. The purpose is to prevent the wastage of fingerlings and fries caught and thus ensure the sustainability and growth of our aquatic resources.

For the foregoing reasons, the immediate passage of this bill, previously filed as House Bill No. 203 by the undersigned, is earnestly sought.
