EXPLANATORY NOTE

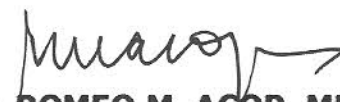

José Protasio Rizal Mercado y Alonso Realonda was a man of incredible intellectual power, with amazing artistic talent as well. He was a nationalist, novelist, poet, ophthalmologist, journalist, and revolutionary. He is widely considered as one of the greatest heroes, if not the national hero, of the Philippines.

He called for peaceful reform of Spain's colonial rule in the Philippines. After his public execution in 1896, opposition to Spanish rule grew stronger. Spurred on by Rizal's martyrdom, the Philippine Revolution continued until 1898 when the Philippines declared its independence from Spain on June 12, 1898. It was the first democratic republic in Asia. Jose Rizal remains a nationalist icon in the Philippines for helping the country take its first steps toward independence.

Out of eighty (80) provinces in the Philippines, only the Province of Rizal was named after him. On November 12, 2012, the Sangguniang Panlalawigan of the Province of Rizal passed Resolution No. 254 requesting His Excellency, President Benigno Simeon C. Aquino III to rename certain National Roads in the Province of Rizal to Jose Rizal Highway.

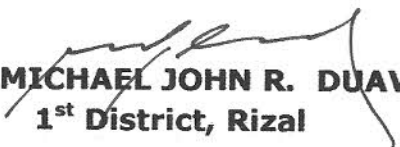

This bill seeks to rename certain National Roads in the Province of Rizal to Jose Rizal Highway in honor and salutation to a distinguished Filipino nationalist regarded by many as the 'Pride of the Malay Race' and foremost Filipino that ever lived.

For the foregoing reason, the immediate passage of this bill is earnestly urged.
