HOUSE BILL NO. 1888

INTRODUCED BY REPRESENTATIVE ALFRED VARGAS

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Filipino Culture is popularly known for valuing close family ties. More often than not, the lives of every Filipino people revolve around the family. Thus, the loss of a family member carries a devastating blow, both emotional and physical, upon those left behind.

When an employee loses a member of his or her immediate family, he or she shouldn't be worried about earnings and job security; the employee must be allowed to take time off from work to make the necessary arrangements, mourn with the family and, eventually, heal.

To strike a balance between maintaining a productive work environment and providing support to a grieving employee, this bill instructs all employers, public or private, to grant a paid, bereavement leave of five working days to employees who suffered the loss of an immediate loved one: parent, sibling, spouse, or child.

This initiative also benefits employers as it makes their employees feel valued, contributes to the workers' engagement, thereby helping employers to attract and retain the best and the brightest people to their pool of human resources. Furthermore, the bereavement leave is unlikely to be abused because each individual is unique in dealing with loss and take different periods of time to heal after the death of a loved one; many people welcome the respite of a few days leave, while others prefer the distraction of the work load and the sense of normalcy that comes with returning to their respective daily routine.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
