HOUSE BILL NO. 5186

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Since the passage of RA 8479 deregulating the price of petroleum products including LPG, the price of the latter has more than doubled. Even as the law mandated the Department of Energy (DOE) to monitor the international and domestic prices of crude and petroleum products, the pricing is left to the oil/LPG companies and their dealers and retail outlets.

While the DOE has lately been successful in persuading most companies to implement price adjustments of liquid petroleum products in small increments, the situation is not true for all players in the LPG business. Some players have been noted to implement the full impact of increases in the benchmark monthly contract price (CP) in Saudi Arabia at the beginning of the month, but only smaller increments are implemented during times of downward CP movements.

It is recognized that domestic prices are dependent on the price in the international market and the peso exchange rate. However, certain mechanism may have to be put in place to protect the welfare of the consuming public from abuse by unscrupulous local LPG industry players.

Even as liberalization of the downstream oil industry has been the policy adopted by our government, the urgent passage of this bill is earnestly sought to provide a mechanism to ensure reasonable prices and timely adjustments for LPG.
