EXPLANATORY NOTE

The constitutional provision which seeks to establish fundamental equality of men and women before the law must be realized in existing statute books. It considers women as important partners in the achievement of national development goals. As such they must be treated equally with their male partners in the eyes of the law.

Presently, however, certain provisions of the Family Code are burdened with inequities that directly hamper the realization of this constitutional provision.

This proposed bill enumerates pertinent provisions in the Code which will hinder the effective implementation of gender equality under Section 14, Article II of the Constitution.

These provisions were likewise classified as discriminatory to women in Section 15 of the Implementing Rules and Regulations of the Magna Carta for Women of R.A. No. 9710. Section 12 of this law mandates that the State should review and, if necessary amend and/or repeal existing laws that are discriminatory to women within the period of 3 years from the effectivity of the law on 15 September 2009. Considering the lapse of time since its approval, these laws must now be amended.

Moreover, this will protect and strengthen the institution of marriage and family life.

This bill was filed during the 16th and 17th Congresses. Due to time constraints however, no further action was taken on it. This bill is re-filed for the consideration of the 18th Congress.

Support for the enactment of this measure is earnestly requested.
