EXPLANATORY NOTE

Transplantation of human organs, tissues or parts from one person to another is one of the highly acclaimed medical advancement internationally. The demand for donors has grown at a steadily increasing pace in the market and gave rise to the business of human organ trading.

This commodification of human organs, tissues or parts has led to the exploitation of persons living in poverty and the uneducated, especially from the developing countries, who would readily sell for easy and big money. This is not only socially problematic but is also morally repugnant, a direct affront to human dignity, the right to health and social justice –which are all enshrined in the 1987 Constitution.

Barely two years when the Philippines opened itself to medical tourism in 2005, hundreds of patients from foreign countries had visited the country for organ (mostly kidney) transplantation. According to the Department of Health (DOH), several health facilities have violated DOH Administrative Order which mandates a ten percent (10%) allocation of organ transplantation to foreign patients/recipients.

Protests from concerned medical professionals and the Department of Social Welfare and Development have prompted the issuance of a presidential directive, in 2008, totally banning organ transplantation to foreign recipients who use Filipino donors not related to them. However, despite said directive, the current system to supervise and regulate organ transplantation in the country remains inadequate as the practice of illegal transplantation still persists.

As an affirmation of human dignity, this proposed measure will institutionalize measures and safeguards to better protect the vulnerable, poor and marginalized from exploitation as well as eliminate the practice of illegal transplantation. It aims to prohibit the commodification of human organs, tissues and parts and penalize all those who engage in the same, including but not limited to, those who advertise, support, encourage, facilitate and practice unlawful transplantation.

The passage of this bill is earnestly sought.

AN ACT
TO INSTITUTE POLICIES TO PROHIBIT COMMERCIAL DEALINGS IN HUMAN ORGANS, TISSUES AND/OR PARTS, PROVIDING PENALTIES
THEREFOR FOR ITS VIOLATIONS, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Philippines in Congress assembled:

SECTION. 1. Title. – This Act shall be known as the “Anti-Commercial Dealings in Human Organs, Tissues and/or Parts Act”.

SEC. 2. Declaration of Policy. - It is hereby declared that the State values the dignity of every human person and guarantees the respect of individual rights. In pursuit of this policy, the State shall give highest priority to the enactment of measures and development of programs, projects and policies that will promote human dignity, protect the people from any threat of violence and exploitation, and prevent and eliminate commercial dealings in human organs, tissues and/or parts.

The State further recognizes the inherent human dignity of persons as enshrined in the United Nations Universal Declaration on Human Rights, United Nations Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime Including its Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography to the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, World Health Organization's Guiding Principles on Human Organ Transplantation and all other relevant and universally accepted human rights instruments and other international conventions to which the Philippines is a signatory.
