EXPLANATORY NOTE

Article II, Section 16 of the 1987 Constitution provides that:

“The State shall protect and advance the right of the people to a balanced and healthy ecology in accord with rhythm and harmony of nature.”

Reality, however, demonstrates otherwise. Throughout the country, most evidently in urban areas, our people are choked by the seemingly incessant pollution. Heaps of garbage left to rot in the streets, including the stench of sewer water and excreta offend the senses. All this, contained in a depressing urban sprawl drains the lustre of life; the very balance and health of ecology that the State has promised to uphold.

A happy, healthy, and content citizenry requires more than the satiety of their daily needs. They too, need to find the necessary reprieve from the pressures of a fast-paced lifestyle borne of modernity. Our people need to be able to reconnect and recollect themselves in the peace and serenity that, without comparison, nature can provide. Many areas in the country, however, do not afford this privilege to our people. The idea, therefore, is to bring the serenity of nature within reach to all through the development of public “green spaces.”

Presently, there are only 12,152.79 ha of green space or 21 percent of NCR providing breathing spaces for around 12.8 million people in the capital region and according to the Department of Environment and Natural Resources, is expected to continually shrink, due to the onslaught of development and booming population growth. Even the famed “last lung” of Manila, the Arroceros Forest Park, was threatened with the proposed building of a gymnasium. This in turn, contributed to the country’s “mall culture,” seeing as the environment outside has become rather aesthetically displeasing.

The country’s development, so far, has lacked not only a healthful purpose, but an aesthetic one as well. Beautifying our surroundings is important not only because of its practical benefits to our overall well-being, but because it is a reflection of the values we uphold. Whether such values are drab and uninspiring, as we ought to witness now; or sublime and transformative as we all hope it would be, it would be best to make these changes now.

As such, under this Act the creation, development, and maintenance of public green spaces shall be a matter of national policy, provided for, at no cost to the people, by the State.

In view of the foregoing the immediate approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
