House Bill No. 5708

Introduced by OFW FAMILY PARTY LIST Representative Alberto D. Pacquiao

EXPLANATORY NOTE

On November 7, 2000, Republic Act No. 8972, otherwise known as the Solo Parents Welfare Act of 2000, was signed into law by then President Joseph E. Estrada. The law formally recognized the solo parent family as an integral part of Philippine society and outlines the rights and privileges accorded for them.

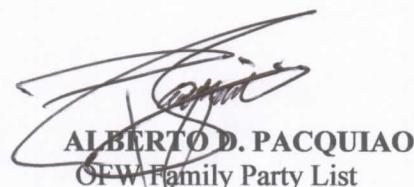

This bill takes a closer scrutiny of the law and attempts to initiate meaningful amendments more than 18 years after the initial passage. By taking into account the current condition of solo parent families as well as the face-to-face experiences of our solo parent partner organization – the National Council for Solo Parents Inc., provisions for inclusion of OFWs in the classification, additional benefits, shortening of waiting period for availing benefits, raising the age of dependents, and discounts have been incorporated. Moreover, this bill provides for penalties against those that fail to enforce the provisions of this Act to ensure its effective implementation.

The likes of solo parents in the mold of Mary Jane Veloso who opted to go abroad to seek employment is a mirror of the plight of millions of solo parents and one of the more compelling reasons for the inclusion of OFWs in the classification. More specifically from the perspective of the effect of absentee parents on the Filipino family today, it is high time that the classifications of solo parents are hereby amended in this Act.

In a 2015 report of the National Statistical Coordination Board (NSCB), approximately three (3) million children are in solo parent homes in the Philippines. These are children of solo parents and migrants or overseas workers. In 2017 alone, 53.3% or 907,061 of the live births were to unwed mothers, which is but one of the many solo parent categories.

In a progressive and responsive legislation, these evolving dynamics of the family must be addressed as part of responsible relationships with the protection of children in mind. As lawmakers, we must aim to address the complexities and growing needs of the Filipino family, which remains the basic unit of our society.

In view of the foregoing, passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
